Dear ,

What is it about feelings of rejection that they hurt so much?
Why do we have this problem? What can be done about it?

Read on dear Reader. There is a cure for this dis-ease...

Steve

Oh, It Hurts, It Hurts

So many ways to cope with it; none work...

Feelings of rejection can be compared to a ten ton gorilla that likes nothing better than to sit on you. I'll take the gorilla every time! Nobody I know likes feeling rejected; it feels so terrible. Most people I know have a coping strategy for rejection. Some strategies work better than others; some are more socially acceptable.

I had several coping strategies which began in childhood: hiding out in shyness as I withdrew from possible rejection like a turtle into his shell; escaping into fantasy where I lived in dreams of a me that others would admire and never reject; seething and sulking in repressed anger, planning ways of getting even; and scrambling up the ladder of achievement to get my cup filled with "attaboys" instead of putdowns. By early adulthood some of these coping mechanisms were operating at industrial strength. Can you relate?

Traumatic experiences can sow feelings of rejection within us, especially if these were sins of verbal, physical or sexual abuse directed against us. In fact every sin against us is a form of rejection, even the well meaning, conditional love of parents and teachers who put their approval of us on a performance basis. Even, perfect love must at times reject behavior and attitudes that are not right, but never the person who we are deep down, created and loved by God.

To be rejected for who we are by the looks, words or deeds of others is a tremendously painful traumatic experience in itself. Many people--the shy, the perfectionists, the exhibitionists, the high achievers--organize their whole lives around trying to avoid rejection by others, while seeking to reap their approvals.

The math on this is terrible: ten approvals can be easily wiped out by one rejection. And the pain of possible rejection keeps millions hiding their real self from others (even from God), running from true intimacy, love and life into the safer, shallow waters of meaningless relationships and purposeless lives. Rejection is a gigantic stronghold in the land promised to us that must be brought down!

A "Secret Knowledge" Snares Us

"Gospel Knowledge" frees us...

Rejection is a stronghold that draws it's true strength from our worst fears. As bad as it feels to be rejected by people, there is an even more terrible cause for anxiety hiding deep within us.

Sin stings us with the painful truth that there will be a judgment to face, a judgment that no one is able to face without a Savior from sin. Isn't this what rejection by others plays into? The terrible, secret knowledge that there is Something Wrong going on deep inside, the wrong of original sin.

We may not know ourselves as sinners in rebellion against our God, but we do know that we don't know Him like we should. We know that we are not the person we should be. We know that there is something we have Lost and cannot recover, the original innocence, the innocence we tasted in childhood.

Ultimately, we know one day we will have to face God, and that we won't be able to give sufficient answer when we do. The rejections of other people draws its strength from this secret knowledge--secret only because we half-hide it from ourselves. If people reject me, might not the ultimate Person reject me?

The terrible truth about our fallenness is that for our sins and separation from God, we should all ultimately be rejected. Our sinfulness actually deserves hell--the ultimate rejection. But this truth of who we are apart from Christ is meant to be swallowed up by the greater truth of the gospel--that Jesus suffered rejection and abandonment by God on our behalf, so that we would never have to experience it. The gospel liberates us from the torment of rejection--if we believe it with our

How I Got Free of Rejection

This is from "Rescued from Hell"..

How did it happen? How was freedom won? In every case I had to forgive the person who rejected me, whether real or imagined and put away those hard feelings. That thorn had to be completely removed and replaced with positive feelings for the offender.

Then I had to find a way to give the hurt feelings to God. It helped to look toward something good I might have learned or some way in which I might have grown. This was putting Romans 8:28 to work: "For we know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those who are the called according to His purpose." Slowly coming to see that this promise was true in some instances enabled me to embrace it as an invariable rule in all cases.

Rescued from Hell

All of this good training fell apart at a later date in my life, when it seemed that several people had rejected me without cause and were spreading rumors and falsehood. I began complaining strenuously to the Lord, "I'm going to forgive them, but You just don't know how much it hurts!" Now that's comical--telling Jesus, who was put to death by His own people, that He doesn't know how much rejection can hurt a guy! I sensed the irony of it, but pursued my complaint just the same. Then I became suddenly aware of a Presence.

Jesus was standing right behind me and a bit off to my left. I couldn't see Him with my eyes, but His Hands were outstretched with palms up, and He was saying to me with a twinkle of humor, "So what am I to you, Steve? Chopped liver?" The Jewish delicatessen flavor to His question really cracked me up! I broke out laughing, "Yes, I'm sure You're right Lord. What was I thinking? You're the only one who ever died for me. You're always with me, loving me. You matter more than anyone else possibly could." Then I got it. "Oh, My God! I've got a bigger problem than I thought!"

In fact I had two problems. Rejection keeps you looking at what others did or said, as if that were your real problem. It never wants you looking at what you are doing or saying.

abuse and won.

Holding on to rejection is a double sin: it is the sin of idolatry of others because it puts their opinion of you above God's; and it is the sin of unbelief because you believe what your feelings are telling you, rather than what God has declared in His Word. Now check me on this: what was the chart topping sin on God's list of ten things never to do? Idolatry (Exodus 20:3). And what was the sin that barred the way of the Israelites into the Promised Land? Unbelief (Hebrews 3:19). Holding on to feelings of rejection had me sinning--without realizing it--in two very major ways.
(No wonder it is so painful!)

Immediately, I went to the Lord in prayer, confessing and thoroughly repenting of all my previous agreements with these two sins; I had Him pull my heart out of other people and plug it into Him. As I chose to believe the Truth with all my heart that He has unfailing love and acceptance for me, I felt my heart's need for acceptance come to rest in His own great Heart like a ship held secure in a safe harbor.

The Father's total acceptance of us in the Beloved is the true antidote for every instance of rejection (Ephesians 1:6). As I let that greater Truth wash over me, all past and present feelings of rejection and fears of rejection fell away. Then I asked Him to let me be "burned as needed" if I started touching "the hot stove" of idolatry of other people's opinions again. Sometimes you have to apply iodine to the wound to be sure of the healing. The wound of rejection got healed that day. It has remained well healed ever since!

From We to Thee Preparing for the Harvest...

From the pages of our new website forerunners4Him.org has come a new book:

Salvation Basics: How to Get Saved and Stay Saved.

This is also the book that the men at the Mission have helped me to write. It has been through working with them that I have gained far more clarity (I believe) into the deeper issues of how to stay saved. Hey, we all know that getting saved is easy--it is staying in the joy of His salvation (Ps 51) that is the tricky part. Check out a sample at amazon.

We will supply this book at half price (for orders of 10 or more) to any group or individual wanting to distribute them to seekers and new believers!
